

Mother's day poem

*Thank you, mum, for everything you do.
You're the bestest mummy in the world!*

You have super-charged legs and a soft centre heart,
a chocolate in a box.
You tidy my bedroom and drop me off at school
and even wash my socks.

You find things that I'd thought I'd lost.
How do you know where everything is?
If I was a bottle of cloudy lemonade,
you'd be the fruity fizz!

*Thank you, mum, for everything you do.
You're the bestest mummy in the world!*

You do so many things for me,
so my poem could last forever.
I'm a happy child and happier still,
when we're doing stuff together.

I love you mummy and I always will!
The earth, the moon and the stars.
My love for you is longer still than the miles from Mercury to Mars.

*Thank you, mum, for everything you do.
You're the bestest mummy in the world!*

© Paul Delaney www.pauldelanypoetry.co.uk

The best iPhone charger in the world

If I was the world's most advanced iPhone,
without a single bug,
my super-charger would be my mum,
when she gives me a great big hug.

Father's day poem

My dad's SUPER and here's why:

SUPER Bananas and custard maker.

SUPER Pepperoni pizza cooker.

SUPER Silly joke teller.

SUPER Funny Face puller.

SUPER free taxi driver.

SUPER dishwasher emptier.

SUPER Rugby Union player.

SUPER caravan tower.

SUPER sports Gym goer.

SUPER maths homework solver.

SUPER sadness busting cuddler.

That's why you're SUPER!

And that's why I love you so much!

Thanks Dad! Xxx

Poems © Paul Delaney

What's your dad or grandad good at?

Or your step-dad or mum's boyfriend?

